Mastering college lecture circuit, Belushi entertains McAfee crowd

by Gary Burrows

Jim Belushi may have been in Charleston Saturday, but to anyone who followed him throughout the day, his answers and advice appeared memorized; his personal interaction, rehearsed.

As with the successful process which carried him from high school theater to the big time as a regular both on Saturday Night Live and in motion pictures, Belushi has mastered the lecture circuit.

The comedian entertained more than 650 people Saturday night in McAfee South after teaching an improvisation workshop to theater arts majors and holding a press conference Saturday afternoon.

Perhaps as the last stop on a tight lecture schedule, which took him from Texas to Elgin and then to Charleston—via a Saturday morning drive on I-57 from Chicago—the questions posed by students and reporters alike ceased to require thought.

Perhaps he was tired and thought only of a nap on a University Union couch or the Sunday plane that would take him back to his job in New York. But whatever the reason, Belushi provided only the facts but little of his thoughts and opinions.

There has been a world of change for the 30-year-old Wheaton native since he last traveled I-57 as a Southern Illinois University speech-communications student.

As a student, Champaign provided a chance for Belushi "to eat and check out the girls," while the Charleston Mattoon exit earned his respect as a speed trap.

But Belushi's ambitions have not allowed him to slow down since his years in Wheaton Central High School.

"I'm still trying to figure out the first 16 years of my life," he joked.

Although he was deeply involved with student theater, track and field and "doing everything," high school became an obstacle when, at 16-years-old, he went to see his brother John perform at Second City of Chicago.

"I was amazed at the place, I never saw anything like it. It became my goal that day to work at Second City," Belushi said.

So Belushi went off to Second City five or six times a year to absorb the art of improvisation.

In college, he formed improvisation groups. At the College of DuPage, he formed the Midwest Gazette; at Southern, he led The Little Egyptian Players.

Belushi also headed a third group but failed to remember its name. "That (third) group wasn't too good," he admitted with a shrug.

While at DuPage, Belushi auditioned and met the producer of Second City, who suggested the young comedian audition in a few years when he had more experience.

"I hung onto that for six years," he said.

Like a historian of comedy, Belushi placed himself in chronological perspective with Second City and its students.

He joined the improvisation group in 1976 and called himself a student of "the 'new wave' of comedy."

That period, he said, started in 1971 with his brother John, Harold Ramis and Joe Flaherty as the leaders in a period of (See MASTERING, page 7)

Dismissal Fall figures show 106 fewer leave

by Mary Holland

The number of dismissals decreased this fall by 106 students compared to a year ago, indicating that the impact of a more stringent dismissal policy could be leveling off.

Registrar James Martin reported that 265 students were dismissed this fall, compared to 371 students dismissed after the fall 1983 semester.

However, the number of students on probation increased from 771 students at the close of fall 1983, to 846 at the end of last fall.

Martin said he believes students are becoming more aware of GPA requirements of the stricter dismissal policy instituted in the summer of 1983.

He added that students who are starting the semester on probation are carrying a more realistic class load.

"It did seem that students who started this semester on probation carried fewer hours which made them concentrate on those hours rather than over-extending themselves," Martin said.

Martin, who once called the policy "elitist", has been one of several campus officials to criticize the policy since it went into effect in 1983.

The graduated scale of the policy has been the focal point of criticism because students in the most academic trouble face the stiffest requirements to stay in school. The policy has also been cited as a contributing factor in Eastern's minority enrollment decline.

In spite of the recent decline in dismissals, Martin said figures are still higher than what they were under the former policy.

"In my opinion it will never go back to what it was under the old system," Martin said.

Pat Wright, who helped devise the current policy, said he "rejoices" that fewer students were dismissed last fall.

"It could mean that students are suddenly realizing the university means business and they are buckling down and studying," he said.

Wright said the dismissal policy is intended to ensure that students admitted to Eastern eventually earn a degree. Under the former policy, Wright said students were on probation "semester after semester," and were never able to achieve the 2.0 GPA needed to graduate.

"There is no sense of students taking up space without even a prayer of graduating," Wright said. "He's using up state money, his own money. He's occupying class space. There are students clamoring to get in here. We're turning students away. Why continue to support students who won't do the work?"

Some campus officials said they do not believe the (See DISMISSAL, page 5)

Current enrollment similar to Spring '84

by Jean Wright

Spring enrollment at Eastern totaled 9,393 students, a figure almost identical to spring 1984 figures when 9,395 students were enrolled.

Eastern President Stanley Rives said the stable enrollment "indicates that Eastern remains an attractive institution to Illinois students and their parents."

The new spring enrollment figure represents 94.8 percent of last fall's enrollment of 9,908. Last year's spring enrollment was 93.7 percent of the previous fall's semester enrollment.

Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams said, "We normally expect that spring enrollment will be 94 percent of fall semester enrollment."

Acting Admissions Director Pamela Hadwiger cited graduation as one reason for lower spring enrollment. "Not as many students enroll in the spring as do graduate in the winter," she said.

Williams said there are several factors responsible for maintaining a stable enrollment, which he called a long range goal of the university.

"The stop-out rate has slowed down. By 'stop-out' I don't mean 'drop-out'. The stop-out student is the student who leaves for some other reason than his grades. He doesn't just drop out. Also, there is an increase in the rate of former students returning," he said.

Enrollment by class at Eastern for the current semester breaks down as follows (with spring 1984 figures in parentheses): freshmen 2,110 (2,183); sophomores 2,130 (1,974); juniors 2,114 (2,115); seniors 2,215 (2,319); and graduate students 824 (804).

Also included in the total enrollment are 85 new freshmen and 339 new transfer students (356 last semester). Total enrollment includes 4,907 (52 percent) women and 4,486 (48 percent) men.

Butler's hearing set for Wednesday

Former Student Body President Joe Butler told The Daily Eastern News late Sunday night that he had received notification that he is to appear before a University Judicial Board at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Butler said he received a letter Saturday charging him with extensively damaging a hotel room, throwing furniture into a pool, causing a disturbance resulting in his ejection at a bar, and being intoxicated during the Student Senate retreat at the Ramada Inn in Terre Haute, Ind.

Chernenko sick; may step down

LONDON—British newspapers reported Sunday that Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko is being treated in the intensive care unit of a private Kremlin hospital, and may relinquish power because of deteriorating health.

Western diplomats contacted by the Associated Press in Moscow said they had not heard any such reports, although most said they believe the 73-year-old Chernenko is ailing.

The Sunday Times quoted "unofficial reports" as saying Chernenko, who has not been seen in public since Dec. 27, will become the first Soviet leader to step down voluntarily.

Residents undaunted by danger

NEW LENOX—As work crews pumped tons of a highly flammable liquefied gas from three derailed tank cars in New Lenox Township, some of the hundreds of evacuated residents returned home, braving the risk of a possible explosion, authorities said Sunday.

The residents were evacuated Saturday within a one-mile radius of the site where 17 cars of a 30-car Norfolk & Western Railway train derailed about 1:30 a.m., Will County Sheriff's Lt. Ray Van Dyke said Sunday.

Three cars of the derailed train contained 450,000 pounds of butylene, a highly flammable form of liquefied petroleum gas, railway spokesman Bob Auman said Sunday.

Seats not used properly—report

WASHINGTON—Forty-nine states require automobile safety seats for small children, but federal officials say the devices are used only about half the time when required—and then usually improperly.

Safety experts also say the design of the child safety seats, their complicated instructions for use, and the fact that most cars are not made to use the seats all contribute to the problem.

Alarmed by the situation, the National Transportation Safety Board is bringing together auto manufacturers, safety experts, and government officials Monday for a symposium to discuss the matter.

Reagan against defense cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, standing firm against major cuts in military spending plans, is stepping up the pace of his meetings with lawmakers one week before he submits a budget aimed at slashing the federal deficit by $50 billion.

Reagan will kick off a busy schedule by conferring Monday with Republican members of the tax-writing Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees and then with members of the House Republican whip organization.

On Tuesday, he has private meetings with members on his schedule and will dine with freshmen members and their spouses in the evening. Wednesday and Thursday, he has sessions planned with members of congressional committees, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said.

Speakes declined to name the committees, saying the schedule might change, but he said, "Mostly he is meeting with money committees to talk about the budget."

Reagan's budget is scheduled for submission to Congress on Feb. 4 and is expected to contain a deficit of about $180 billion after $50 billion in spending cuts.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has agreed to trim $8.7 billion from a proposed $20 billion Pentagon budget, but many Senate Republicans say this is not enough.

Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, Kan., said last week that Weinberger's willingness to compromise was jeopardizing efforts to come up with significant deficit reductions.

Dole said many Senate Republicans felt it would be almost impossible to win support for freezing such domestic programs as Medicaid, Medicare, and Social Security so long as Weinberger chose to "sit out" the budget trimming negotiations.

Shuttle sets up spy satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The space shuttle's flight was a crucial and successful test of an important piece of hardware, the $50 million rocket booster that propelled the satellite from the shuttle's low Earth orbit to a listening post 22,300 miles high.

The rocket, scheduled for many such missions, failed on its only previous shuttle assignment.

Viewers at the Kennedy Space Center could see the shuttle as only a glinting speck in the sun for five minutes before it touched down. When the craft rolled to a stop, applause broke out. Touchdown was at 4:23 p.m.

Like everything else about the mission, the route of the shuttle's return was kept secret to deny the Soviet Union information that would tell it about the satellite, which is called SigInt, for signal intelligence.

In the last few minutes of flight, Mission Control announced that the shuttle was crossing the Louisiana coast, moving across the Gulf of Mexico and crossing central Florida to this East Coast site.

Commander Thomas K. Mattingly guided Discovery to a center line stop, just three miles from the launch pad where the craft began its secrecy-shrouded, 1.23-million mile journey Thursday afternoon. It was the 15th flight of the space shuttle, and the third for Discovery.

The 104-ton ship was preceded by two sonar booms as it dropped out onto the Kennedy Space Center's runway, a 3-mile strip with alligators and wild pigs nearby.

Lynch trial date not yet decided

by Chris Koester

Although a grand jury has been selected to investigate charges of official misconduct against Coles County Coroner Dick Lynch, no convening date for the grand jury has been set.

Coles County Circuit Court Clerk Charles Authenreith pulled the names of 43 Coles County residents Friday as Circuit Judge Joseph Spitz presided over the selection proceedings.

From the 43 names selected, 23 residents will act as jurors and the other 20 residents will serve as alternates.

Although residents were chosen, they have not yet been notified because Matt Schneider of the Illinois attorney general's office has not yet set a date for the jury to be assembled.

The jury was originally set to convene March 1. However, because Schneider is involved in a murder case in Marshall, the date was indefinitely moved back, Authenreith said.

The grand jury will investigate complaints filed against Lynch near the end of 1984 which alleged that he misappropriated county funds.

The Lynch investigation began following a June 1984 meeting of the county finance committee, when auditor Paul Hipple of the O'Hair, Davis and Hipple accounting firm in Paris made allegations that Lynch may have misused county funds.

At a December county board meeting, Hipple submitted to the board a confidential report listing 21 checks total $7,891 which he said Lynch spent on services or products which were not listed in his departmental budget.

Of those 21 checks, Hipple said 18 were used to pay for repairs on a county-owned Jeep and Lynch's station wagon, both of which he used for county business.

Limited number of permits remain for campus parking

A number of student parking permits are still available for the remainder of spring semester and will go on sale at 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday at the Campus Police Office.

Sgt. George Bosler said a "limited number" of permits are available in lot S, located across from Andrews Hall, lot W, located across from Lawson Hall, lot J, the gravel lot near O'Brien Stadium and lot N, located north of Carman Hall.

Students may purchase parking permits for $3 Monday only, Bosler said.

Richardson: It's time to start over; vows to recapture lost credibility

by Julie Cambria

With Joe Butler's impeachment last week, newly-named student body president Angelynn Richardson said Sunday that it is time to start over.

Richardson, who plans on making several council appointments later this week, said she intends to bring "credibility back to student government."

"We lost a lot of communication, trust and connections while Joe was president," she said. "I want to build student government back to where it was before Joe took over, if that's possible."

"He has ruined everything previous student government members worked so hard to achieve," she said. "It's sad because this is a good organization, and our reputation has been hurt. It needs building up, and I'm going to do my damndest to do it."

Richardson, a junior from Springfield, said her first major goal as president will be to appoint students to various boards and councils on campus.

"I'm hoping to get the committee and council appointments done by Feb. 6," Richardson said. "This should have been done months ago."

Richardson also said she will make her executive vice president appointment at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

"I haven't totally made my decision yet," she said. "Unless someone applies that is really qualified and that I think can do a good job, I've got the person picked. I think I'm going to surprise a lot of people."

Richardson's appointment makes her only the third woman student body president in Eastern's history. "It's about time, and I think it's fantastic," she said. "But I do feel some pressure because of Joe's impeachment."

Richardson stepped in as student body president after the controversial impeachment of former president Joe Butler, Jan. 23.

Richardson said she thought Butler deserved to be impeached because he wasn't performing his duties as student body president.

"The old saying goes, 'give a person enough rope and he'll hang himself,'" Richardson said. "It (the impeachment) should have been done sooner, but I don't think the senators were aware of the president's duties."

Richardson said she thought the 18-hour notice Butler was given to prepare his defense against impeachment was just.

"We could have given him a five-minute notice. It's in our bylaws," she said. "He just wasn't doing his job and made too many people mad."

While Richardson hopes to get "things back in order in the student government office," she also said she has some new ideas she would like to see implemented this semester.

Richardson said she has plans for a university president's council for students at Eastern. The council would be comprised of presidents from various organizations, such as Black Student Union, Residence Hall Association and Panhellenic Council, among others.

"It's been done at other universities," she said. "I think it would be a good chance for the various councils to get together and discuss things that are important to the university."

"I don't think the faculty and the administration know how the students feel," she said. "I think this type of council would help them know what students want and need."

Richardson said she spoke with Union Head Bill Clark about the idea but said she probably wouldn't be able to get started on the project until late February.

Even though Richardson is trying to get student government's respectability back, she said she is not sure she wants to continue next year.

"I'm thinking about running for president this spring but whether I do or not depends on how this semester goes," Richardson said. "If all of this (Butler's impeachment) blows over and things go well, I'll strongly consider it."

Senate should keep Butler's words in mind

The message lives on.

Although the senate has successfully purged Joe Butler from his leadership role, his ideas are alive and well and ready to be comprehended.

Throughout his unorthodox presidential campaign and term, Butler loudly cried out: Editorial THE STUDENT SENATE IS INEFFECTIVE.

Though senate members have bucked at Butler's radical attitude toward their organization, newly appointed Student Body President Angelynn Richardson and her cohorts would be wise to take his message to heart.

Prior to the impeachment, the senate's discussion of its goals for the semester did not leave the impression that it would be making a move toward increased effectiveness in the near future.

Yes, we're glad to know that our senate is concerned about the creation of a shuttle service between Charleston and Mattoon—transportation is indeed a worthwhile issue. However, we believe that many other issues of concern to students—such as tuition, campus security, retention and minority enrollment—should be addressed by the senate.

To learn which issues are of concern to the student body, the senate should be actively soliciting student input and involvement in student government. As Butler noted in his campaign, student government tends not to be representative of the student body as whole—rather, to a great degree, it represents what the former president has termed "the elite."

Certainly it is easy for the Student Senate to serve as a social group for its members. But it is the responsibility of the senate to serve in the interests of all its constituents.

An example of an interest of its constituency that the senate has not addressed is minority enrollment. Minority enrollment may not be a concern to the senate members; however, it is indeed an issue to the university community as a whole.

A continued failure to address issues of concern to the student body is a greater mockery of the ideals of a Student Senate than the silly antics of a philosophy student named Joe Butler.

Your turn

Butler is consistent

Editor:

As a student senator, I would like to thank Eastern for sending me to the spring 1985 Student Senate retreat. I had quite an interesting time, and I have remained relatively quiet about the issue, but now I feel compelled to speak.

Regardless of what other senators say, it is clear that Joe Butler's impeachment was a direct result of his actions at the retreat. I would cite the immediacy of his impeachment after said event and the lack of concern for the other charges prior to the retreat as evidence.

However, I find it ironic that his satire and parody of everyone else attending the event served as justification for his impeachment.

I spent a major part of the retreat in the company of Butler and Matt Geber, and I admit their activities were extreme and excessive. I would also testify that their room was an extremely popular place during the retreat, and many senators who impeached him engaged in a variety of activities that took place there.

Butler, Geber and I were asked to attend the retreat and we were told that we would have to participate in activities we found demeaning; yet when we tried to comply with that standard, we were ostracized.

In addition, although we may have consumed a large quantity of alcohol, the three of us are of legal drinking age. This is not true of a number of other senators.

Furthermore, I am outraged at the senate's attempt to shroud the ordeal in mystery. Upon my return to Charleston, I personally was told to say "no comment" if asked about the retreat. Butler's petition was written clandestinely and delivered late at night—less than 24 hours before the meeting during which he was impeached. I was also told by a university official that a complaint by the hotel and a complaint to Keith Kohanzo had been filed against Butler and Geber, but I shouldn't let them know about it. They would be told later.

The reason the senate impeached Butler is because of his lack of conformity to their values, ideals and lifestyles. The senators, not liking the mess around them, denied responsibility and blamed Butler. On the other hand, Butler behaved in a consistent manner and has admitted the charges against him. Now, whom do you trust more?

Senate hypocritical

Editor:

Once again the students have been oppressed—not by the administration, but by a pompous group of self-righteous right-wingers known as the Student Senate. These self-appointed saints have finally succeeded in ousting a man who dared to be different.

After a weekend of partying, they decided to relieve their guilt by removing Joe Butler from office. They have openly admitted to the fact that they partied with Butler. This was brought out after direct questioning by the convicted man. How can they be such hypocrites?

Another point should be made as to the way the impeachment process was handled. The fact that they went by the rules, does not make up for the lack of common courtesy. A piece of paper handed to the accused parties after midnight, the night before the impeachment proceedings is not enough time.

I am happy Matt Geber retained his office, though I'm sure it was for all the wrong reasons. I'm sure he has enough brains not to become one of your political puppets.

I don't know how the rest of the student population feels, but I don't vote for narrow-minded, backstabbing hypocrites.

Bob Buehler

Standing by senate

Editor:

As one of many students who voted for Joe Butler, I regret his impeachment. However, like many, I also voted for student senators as representatives of my interests. In a situation where facts can so easily be twisted, I feel we must accept the decisions of those most aware of the problems—members of the senate.

Allegations of Butler's derelict behavior could not have been created without proof of their existence. If Butler did in fact misrepresent our university in a way which could tarnish our image, I feel the senate made the right decision in his impeachment. It is with this impeachment that I must stand behind the senate in their decision which was made at the risk of their own integrity.

Sharon Dorf

Eastern Speaks. This week's question is:

"What do you think of the impeachment of Joe Butler?"

Put senate on trial

Editor:

Well, Barry, Ron, Larry and all the swell folks on the Student Senate have done it again. Applying their neo-Neidermeyerism styles of leadership, they have told Joe Butler, "No more double-secret probation. You're out, finished."

But worse than just kicking out this controversial student leader, they have shown total disregard for the wishes of the large number of people who voted for him.

I'm sure many people, myself included, voted for Butler not just because of his silly antics, but because of the statement he made—that the Student Senate is inefficient, a waste of money and, generally, just a joke. The idea that the senate is a joke is exemplified by their charge of "impeding the progress of the senate." What progress are they referring to?

Since I have been at Eastern, I have noted few, if any, acts of substantial progress, but I have noticed a lot of backstabbing and competition to see who can come up with the best resume, and lip service about student representation.

Maybe we should put the whole concept of the Student Senate on trial (I hope, a more substantial trial than the "kangaroo court" that tried Butler).

Why don't we look at real issues concerning the students and what progress the senate has made in dealing with the problem. What did the senate do about the fact that tuition and fees have nearly doubled in the last six years? What has the senate done to substantially increase campus security? These issues have been given constant lip service in recent years; but let's not look at what they did or didn't do, but what they can do.

If we find the senate is powerless in dealing with issues concerning students, and is in fact a waste of money, why don't we just get rid of it? Then we could develop a better, more efficient means to represent the students—such as a full-time, professional advocate who could work statewide in the interest of the students.

If we did get rid of the Student Senate, we could reap another benefit. Just think of all the newsprint The Daily Eastern News could save by not having to fill the paper with Student Senate drivel.

Dismissal

State officials will speak on Awareness Day decrease in fall dismissals indicates the policy's impact is lessening.

Cal Campbell, director of the Academic Advisement Center, predicted dismissals will increase again after this spring, affecting freshmen currently on probation.

"It (the policy) isn't any better than it was in the past," Campbell said. "It is still hurting students."

Campbell said he opposes the policy because students have only one semester on probation to pull their grades up, creating a "revolving door" effect. "My contention is they should make it a bit more difficult to be admitted, but we should do more to retain them," he said.

Sociology instructor Johnetta Jones, who has expressed concern about the policy's impact on minority students, agreed that spring dismissals will probably increase. "I think the semester to watch is the spring because you have most of the entering freshmen coming in the fall," she said.

She added that many of the 409 students who were dismissed at the end of spring 1983 are back this semester under the automatic reentry clause of the policy.

Campbell added that the students dismissed last spring will be readmitted on probation, and need to meet required GPA standards or they will be dismissed again in the spring.

But Wright disagreed that spring dismissals will increase, saying students typically do better in the spring than in the fall. "Generally, students do better in the spring. It could be psychological. I don't know why that is," he said.

Wright said he considers the policy "liberal", and added that students who get D's and F's in classes have the opportunity to retake the course and use the second grade in their GPA.

"I don't think there is an academic explanation for a student to be dismissed with that repeat policy," he said. "If a student can't make a C after taking a course twice, what business does he have in college?"

Wright added that dismissal figures at schools like Western are higher than Eastern's. "And no one's climbing the walls over there and saying the dismissal policy is too strict," he said.

Under Eastern's current policy, students whose grade point averages fall below 2.0 are placed on probation and must demonstrate "satisfactory progress" if they are to remain in school.

Satisfactory progress is determined by a graduated scale which stipulates the lower a student's cumulative grade point average falls, the higher his next semester's GPA must be if he is to remain in school.

Opponents of the policy, including Martin, criticize the graduated scale because students in the most academic trouble must close the widest GPA gap.

"It just doesn't make sense in my book for the people in the most difficulty to have the toughest requirements," Martin said. "They need all the help they can get."

Martin said new students who get into academic trouble early are faced with the problem of pulling their grades up fast.

Four representatives from various Illinois governmental departments will visit Eastern Monday during "Illinois Awareness Day," sponsored by McKinney Hall.

State Senator Max Coffey, R-Charleston, State Representative Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, Scott Miller, assistant to the governor for transportation, and Terry Barnich, legal council adviser to the governor will discuss Illinois governmental operations.

McKinney Hall counselor Beth Tankersly said each speaker will give a 15 to 20 minute presentation on "how the state's government works, how they got interested in government and what they do in their positions." The audience may ask questions following the presentations, she added.

"Miller and Barnich are getting facts together on the amount of money appropriated to state schools, the amount of pay teachers receive from the state and other state processes in higher education," Tankersly said. "We want the program to have a focus for college students."

The program, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Monday in the Triad food service, is being offered as a free educational service to Eastern students and faculty.

"Because this is a year of politics with all the recent elections," she said, "we decided it would be good to offer a program in which students would be able to learn about the state's government."

Shoe factory fate still a mystery

by Tammy Miller

Details are still sketchy in the imminent closing of the Samuel Shoe Factory and the fate of its more than 200 employees.

Officials from the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers, representing the workers at the factory, met with city officials Friday to establish "better communications," according to a press release from City Administrator Michael Steele.

However, city and union officials said Sunday there is still no indication of exactly when the factory will close, or what will become of its local employees.

Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer announced Jan. 8 that Samuels, North Fifth Street Road, is scheduled to close sometime this year following a decision by its owners, the Brown company of St. Louis.

Those present at Friday's meeting included ACTW President Mary Taylor, Samuels employee Pam Muchmore, Pfeiffer, Steele and Charleston Chamber of Commerce Director Martin Owens.

Taylor said the group discussed with the officials what the city could do to help the employees, adding that she was "extremely pleased" with the meeting.

Muchmore said Sunday the city informed the union about a St. Louis meeting between city and Brown company officials scheduled for Feb. 11.

Steele said Sunday the city wants to "make sure we (the city and the union) are aware of appropriate retraining programs" and other state and federal assistance programs.

The trip to St. Louis, Steele said, was scheduled to discuss Brown's "short and long term plans with the plant." He added that he would like the company to "cooperate in marketing the building and the land" for some other business.

Steele also noted that the officials may discuss whether the Samuels employees will be transferred to other Brown plants, although he was not sure if the issue would be addressed.

Steele said he, Pfeiffer, and Owens are hoping to be accompanied in the Feb. 11 meeting by U.S. Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Illinois, Ill. Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Charleston, and Ill. Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston, if their schedules permit.

change with Second City as the hub. "They have a strong influence on the comedy you see today," he said.

Belushi gave extra emphasis on his brother's role. "I was a great fan of his. He was a big influence on a lot of actors at the time and comedy itself."

In judging Second City's success, Belushi credits Chicago and the Midwest. "Second City was my base, where I learned the process. It's a great place for comedy. I think it's the sense of humor here," he said.

"In improvisation, you work off the audience's suggestions. You try to reflect the audience. They are the mirror," Belushi added.

The comedian, who has taught improvisation at DuPage, Columbia University in Chicago and workshops for the Goodman Theater, moved from Second City to plays—including a David Menet play and a lead role in Pirates of Penzance as the Pirate King.

As his acting experience grew, he moved to television and two situation comedies: "Who's Minding The Kids" on NBC and "Working Stiffs" on CBS. Both shows were short-lived.

While working in New York in Sam Sheppard's play True West, NBC expressed interest in putting Belushi on television again.

Saturday Night Live's executive producer, Dick Ebersol, denounced the station executives' suggestions that they find another sit-com vehicle for Belushi and hired the comedian as a SNL regular.

Belushi has confidence in the remainder of SNL's shows this season. "The rest of the season, SNL will be an ensemble show. It's a melting process that takes several weeks to get a hook into the audience," he said.

He also noted that since the group is now working as a stronger unit, the SNL audience will benefit. Belushi said that it is hard to tap a television audience for response, but things work themselves out in the end.

"It's an internal decision whether a show is good or bad . . . you're always tougher on yourself. On SNL, we fail all the time. You say, 'Oh, well, I made a mistake. The next sketch will work,'" he said.

Earn Over $900 A Month While Still In School.

Juniors! Seniors! If you're a math, engineering or physical sciences major, you might qualify to get a check for more than $900 every month.

It's part of the Navy's Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program. And the nearly $22,000 you can earn while still in school is just the start.

When you successfully complete your studies and become a Naval officer, you receive an additional $6,000 bonus. On top of that you receive a year of graduate-level training you can't get anywhere else at any price.

As an officer in today's Nuclear Navy you have a career advantage no civilian job can offer. The Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. The early responsibility and unequalled experience you get as a member of the nuclear propulsion officer team place you among the nation's most respected professionals in one of the world's fastest growing fields.

In addition to the professional advantages, as a nuclear-trained officer, after four years with regular promotions and pay increases you can be earning as much as $37,400. That's in addition to a full benefits package.

Find out more about the unique and rewarding Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program. Call or write the Naval Management Programs Office:

Men tankers come away empty in weekend meets

by Tina Fasano

Despite the weekend's harsh weather, Eastern's men's swimming team managed to make it to Bradley Friday, but the tankers weren't too happy with the 65-47 loss they brought home.

But in spite of the fact that their transportation was grounded, head coach Ray Padovan and his squad set out on their own to take on the Braves.

Padovan said his team swam up to expectations, and that he was mainly pleased with the times they brought home.

"We used the term 'tired' for the way we swam," Padovan said, "because they are at the hardest part of their season, both physically and mentally."

Some of the highlights of the Bradley meet included wins in the 100-meter freestyle by Steve Dempsey, the 200-meter backstroke by Miguel Carrion, and 200-meter breaststroke by Steve Burggraff.

The women's swim team's scheduled meet against Northern Illinois University was cancelled due to the weather, but a tentative rescheduling is being considered.

Saturday, the men returned home to host Missouri-Rolla at home, which Padovan considered to be a well balanced team.

And eventually, Rolla's balance was too much for Eastern to combat, as the Panthers dropped their second straight meet in two days by a score of 41-72.

"The men did better depth-wise than expected," Padovan said.

Padovan said the tankers will go through extended practices and hard workouts this week in preparation for important meets next weekend against Illinois-Chicago and Western Illinois.

"Swimming these tough practices and back-to-back meets hurt us but in the end it is good preparation for the last meets," he said.

Illini stumble past Indiana

CHAMPAIGN (AP)—Forward Erem Winters scored 12 points as sixth-ranked Illinois regained sole possession of first place in Big Ten basketball action with a 52-41 victory over 13th-ranked Indiana on Sunday.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight chose to ignore most of his regulars, using only senior Uewe Blab and freshmen the entire game.

The Illini, who won their sixth game in a row, are now 6-2 in the Big Ten and 17-4 overall.

The game marked the third straight loss for Indiana, the longest for the Hoosiers since a four-game losing streak in 1982. Indiana is now 11-6 overall and 3-4 in the Big Ten.

The Illini led 24-12 after a lackluster first half during which they shot 30 percent from the floor while Indiana managed 28 percent, half its season average.

Indiana set an Assembly Hall record for fewest points in a half with its first half score.

Crook vaults Panthers to first place in AMCU

by Ken Dickson

VALPARAISO, Ind.—Eastern junior Doug Crook scored a season-high 19 points to lead the men's basketball team to a 79-66 win Saturday over Valparaiso.

The win upped the Panthers' record to 8-6 overall and into first place at 3-1 in the Association of Mid-Continent Universities' conference. Valparaiso fell to 5-11 and 1-4.

"Crook had a very good game," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said. "He not only had 19 points, but had five rebounds and six steals. It was a great game for him."

Crook, from Vincennes, Ind., partially attributed being back in his home state for his successful night.

"I think that might have had a little to do with it," Crook chuckled. "I just hit a couple shots early and that got me going. I'm real pleased."

Crook is averaging just over 10 points per game.

"The game was a little different than I expected," Samuels said. "I thought they'd (Valparaiso) be a little more deliberate, but they came out and played."

In fact, the Crusaders, who trailed by nine points, 23-14, mid-way through the first half, came back to tie the score at 37 for intermission. Eastern didn't take control until the 17-minute mark in the second half, and held a 10- to 11-point lead throughout remaining minutes.

"We were more aggressive in the second half," Samuels said. "We executed a lot better, and made crisper passes and got the ball to the right people."

The 'right people' turned out to be anyone within 10 feet of the basket. The Panthers scored 42 points in the second half and all but four of their baskets were inside the lane.

Dirk Androff scored 16 points on 7-for-8 shooting. It was the second game in a row that the 6-foot-7 forward missed only one shot from the field. He's 13-for-17 in his last two games.

As a team, Eastern shot nearly 60 percent, 31-for-53.

Jon Collins and Kevin Duckworth added to the offense with 16 and 13 points, respectively. Crook, who led all scorers, shot 8-for-11.

Also Saturday, the University of Northern Iowa defeated frontrunning Illinois-Chicago 74-73 at the UNI Dome. The Flames, 2-1 in the AMCU, will visit Eastern Saturday.

The Panthers will get a tune-up for their crucial contest with the conference-leading Flames when they travel to Evansville on Wednesday for their third straight road game.

Lady cagers victim of Murphy's Law, humiliated 78-46 by Southern Illinois

by Dan Verdun

CARBONDALE—Eastern's women's basketball team provided a prime example of Murphy's Law Saturday against Southern Illinois University.

Everything that could have went wrong for the Panthers did. The result was a 78-46 Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference loss to the Salukis.

"Our game-sense was a little off," coach Barbara Hilke said. "We made a lot of judgment errors that cost us."

The loss lowered Eastern's record to 10-7 overall and 2-5 in the GCAC. Southern's mark improves to 11-5 overall and 5-2 in the conference.

Eastern was primarily plagued by poor shooting from the field. The Panthers made just 19 of 54 shot attempts for a dismal 35.1 percent.

"We didn't shoot well at all," Hilke said. "We weren't taking shots within our range. We didn't display any patience on offense."

The Panthers also had trouble with the Saluki 1-3-1 zone defense that resulted in 21 turnovers.

"We threw the ball into the strength of their defense quite a bit," Hilke said.

The Panthers, who saw their two-game winning streak snapped, were also outrebounded by the Salukis 38-25.

"Offensively, we had seven rebounds and so did they, but we got hurt on the defensive boards," Hilke said.

Eastern also had problems defending Southern's offensive attack, led by pre-season all-GCAC pick Petra Jackson, who scored a game-high 21 points.

"She's is definitely an all-conference player," Hilke said. "They used a pick to release her, and we weren't picking it up."

"We had no secondary help, and no one was stepping into the passing lane."

Jackson also collected nine rebounds, had four steals, dished out four assists and committed just one turnover in 33 minutes of playing time.

Hilke also said Eastern not only had problems with Southern's zone, but the Panthers were not recognizing the Salukis' switching defenses.

Eastern's lone bright spot on the night was junior Chris Aldridge. The 5-10 Taylorville native led the Panthers in scoring and rebounding with 17 points and nine boards.

"Chris played a great game," Hilke said. "She held the players she was guarding to just eight points on the night."

Senior Toni Collins, who fouled out with 8:05 left in the game, was the only other Panther in double figures with 10 points.

Saturday's loss drops the Panthers' all-time record against Southern to 0-14.

Eastern returns to GCAC action in a 7:30 p.m. Thursday contest at Wichita State.

The Shockers, who finished .500 last year at 14-14, have struggled thus far in the young conference season and currently stand at 5-11 overall and 1-5 in the league.

Freshmen lead tracksters over NE Missouri

by Todd Little

Despite a few minor injuries and illnesses, the Eastern tracksters easily defeated Northern Missouri in men's track action Saturday at Lantz Fieldhouse.

Assistant coach Tom Akers said many of the young people have had to fill-in lately because of injuries and sickness. They have also been called on to fill-in for "four or five" tracksters who decided to quit.

Jim Chandler, a freshman long distance runner, added that freshmen usually get a chance to run in the small meets and that is where they receive most of their experience.

"(Claude) Magee has been off and on all year," Akers said. "But he did very well today winning the 440-yard dash."

"Jim Maton, our most outstanding freshman, won the half-mile. And Don Johnson, winner of the 600-yard dash, has really been coming on."

"Greg Anderson was a double winner," Akers continued. "He took first in the 60-yard and 300-yard dashes, and (Jim) Lail had a good toss in the shot put to take first."

If the coaching staff could have one wish, it would be to have as many healthy people as possible for the upcoming meet with Bradley, Western Illinois, Lincoln and DePaul this week.

"This will be an excellent meet," Akers said. "There will be more quality competition throughout this meet than we've seen this year."

Akers added that some stiff competition will come from Lincoln, who recruited two highly-talented foreigners.
